The example never questions the origins of its community's violence and ignores the reality of statistics and claims an imaginable circumstance is the cause and grows into that statistic as a result but is overseen by the likes of something more imaginable while using fiction created resources to back up the imaginable theory and numbers. I know that sounds stupid because it is.

Hate bred from an early age is taught that the bigger the faction, the bigger the change, but doesn't change the numbers of factual statistics and can't be erased by acting as if you've been victimized through life by never taking responsibility for the changes that you should be pursuing. Whining with superficial screaming and crying about something that isn't happening based on a self-secluded personality disorder and mental state of cognitive dissonance from an upbringing of paranoid safety acceptance and being a novice of most social activities that have become the design of the social anchors made by themselves.

Can you imagine staying home expecting everything and everyone to come to you? America is known for its freedom and opportunities. So what happened to the opportunity of experiencing actual opportunity? No public transportation or truck deliveries can easily turn this country into a dismal prison leading towards a public economic crisis then ending with a useless industry. With no business having no customers, there are no paychecks for the drivers, thus no public transportation or deliveries eventually clashing with essential workers from nearly every position that accounts into a supply and demand effect for any type of business to succeed. The majority of essential workers who can afford vehicles but also rely on public transportation will no longer have work as well, and without the majority of workers working, everything that makes life simple and convenient economically comes to a stand-still that fades away, stopping all production everywhere leading to the finale of the end of its road.

Liberal left-leaning counter-culture mentality thinks they deserve the light and to be the only voice. it's like they're trying to find an identity by trying to become the spotlight of publicity just to create massive portions of brainwashed people just like themselves with embedded unknown bigotry derived from those who did not grow socially and were confined to a personal space with neglected morals and never taught the significance of growing out and growing up respectfully.

The ever so awkward new social society is about hating everything it lacks, just as much as opportunities for themselves and not socially experiencing America that they blatantly shout is so racist and biased and seem to be In denial of America as a country so enriched in diversity creating subsidiaries in its very culture. with more gay and mixed marriages, and nationalities than absolutely any other country and has more ideologies combined than any other land. all Americans equally receive the freedom to be an individual with an allowance to live naturally as a mental freelancer.

The new world is also home to democrat radicals who state that they stand for the minority, but the minority represents the individual and makes a stand for a minority. With paid campaign plays from food products to brand labeled apparel sponsoring celebrities, athletes to artists, everyone seems to be getting paid these days to be seen and heard just to dislike someone all for a political agenda rather than endorsing someone for a life meaningful purpose.

Even celebrities are holding back certain information that can be crucial to finding out great truths within a controlling industry but is a power play with a new world hiding something much bigger. A man-made pandemic with no one being held accountable for consequences for crimes on humanity through activities and media manipulation. Whether it be a politician with a high rank, an owner of a theater, to a producer of a film, it doesn't matter, just as long as they play for the new world stage and are paid by new world paychecks.

These superficial socialisms are so sinister and evil that it holds people accountable for their will to have the freedom to be self-sufficient thinkers by continuing to embrace and enforce free will against the wickedness of modernized enslavement that authorizes limitations on all freedom and livelihood. Just as a bird only works properly using both wings and learns to reason its life based on an instinct by utilizing itself to fly, but if you take away one wing from the bird, there is no debating that it can never take action again in what it was born to do.

With the new world celebrating a spectrum of nonspiritual principalities based on air with no moral compass, it has been a mission to ruin nature that is more commonly conditioned with warm hearts united, and peaceful minds.

The party used to be filled with people all about partying, enjoying the music, dancing, and getting to know each other until they let in all the people who knew nothing about what a party was. the guestlist now is considered discrimination against the people who waited in line and the new club is called "The Capital", with everyone seemingly biased against one another where trust has lost its value. one-sided leaning organizations holding public events ranging from Pop to Hip-hop paid artists just to support lies and slander an ideology that defeats science through miracle alone and continues being persecuted because of its deprivation of self-conditioning. However, nothing is being said about these radical organizations deliberately practicing and training a harsh art of being bitterly angry and evil based on the empowerment of hate, hostility, and division.

The nature of being honest has become a self-reflection of one's own needs and is no longer true in hindsight. blinded by people who use their power to make a billion others hear their voice in astronomical numbers without any ticket sales.

flaunting a position as power through the use of propaganda is forced arrangements and has become the norm. From staging court testimonies stemming from 30 years back with no accountable evidence in costumes and acting out a narrative becoming over-performative without being accountable for the fabrication of such horrendous fables written and scripted purposely to create a history of misinformation as facts. falling back on the title of “Infotainment media” that should be fined nothing less of a shutdown with the cancellation of their broadcasting and imprisoned for publishing propaganda tactics and practices of misinformation using psychosis brainwashing.

Journalism is now a remote kitchen table position just using a search engine also owned and policed by the same elites that focus on censoring retractions with evidence-based on substantial proof but pushed as misleading then censored and banned.

Truth, is the last thing the new world applies to file and report, and can also be seen as a bad work ethic and possibly due to a social disorder derived from a subtle sense of a finer life with years of benefits of medications prescribed for “at the moment comfort” to sipping wine with a big smile on your face while mocking absolutely everyone and everything.

So how long can we continue accepting these demeaning tactics of abuse not only on individuals but ethnicities of specific races based in communities that are blind to these communist policies? Along with professional educators, historians, scholars, professors, and teachers that have worked hand-in-hand with manipulating and twisting the facts to their significance based on specific cherry-picking propaganda as a means for indoctrination.

The only fair play to overcome the misinformation is to apply yourself to “becoming a critical thinker” by tuning out and reducing your visits and presence on social media apps and websites and turning your T.V. off. spending time educating yourself and finding truthful resources not based on an agenda or derived from a particular side will give you enough freedom that natural common sense will kick in and take over your reluctance to be naive and having fear to disagree out of guilt will slowly dissolve into logical truth based on the closest to facts all because you simply choose to shut off “the lies”.

You start seeing the true realities of what is going on and that bigotry and fascism are being derived from the very same siders that are responsible for division by threatening anyone and any family that doesn't agree with the narrative or an incoherent one-sided policy. What the new world wants for itself isn't a protest for everyone, in which it opposes not just the constitutional rights of an American, but the American class by respectful standards itself as well and not just culturally but derived from sub to counter to pop to mainstream, understanding and helping “a life” will always be a sign for what America is and rightfully known not from politics but its people.
